GREENVILLE COLLEGE

GREENVILLE, ILLINOIS

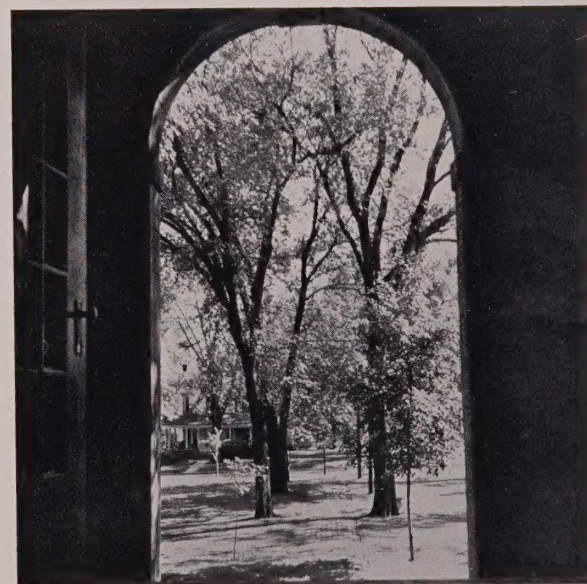

Dedication

Men of arms, of dauntless valour, you are tall and fine.
As of body, tall of spirit, badge of soul divine,
And the soul that strives within you, God created not for war,
But for life, for freedom's mission, for pursuit of wisdom's star.

Nor your strong courageous skill in battle's savage fray,
Nor the gallant fortitude of spirit you display
We salute your love of truth, of justice and of right
Greater far than brutal show of hatred cloaked in might.

Sons of Freedom, still forget not where your birthright lies.
Yours indeed the post of war, in vic'try you will rise
To a nobler post of peace unguarded by the sword.
Beauty, Truth and Brotherhood must meet in love's accord.

We fight and die, but our hopes beat high,
In spite of the toil and tears,
For we catch the gleam of our vanished dream
Down the path of the untrod years.

The sagacious SENIORS look

September sunlight poured warmly on Greenville that fall of 1939 when another freshman class lined up for registration. The future was far away and not a thing of concern. Only the present loomed importantly with rooms to settle, big brothers and sisters to meet, receptions and hikes to enjoy.

How quickly we have become seniors! It is our last semester, and now the FUTURE looms large—and chaotic. The Jubilant

Amplly replenished by students from many junior colleges the class of '44 wended its way back to the campus in September, and found that it had by far the most students both men and women. Because of this large available supply of manpower, members of the Class of '44 were found in almost every endeavor of the campus groups, leading some activities and loyally supporting others.

After Dinner Fellowship

Again and one might almost say, traditionally, the girls of the class carried off the basketball championship, and also for the third time in a row the men closely trailed the men of '43 to win second honors in basketball.

After losing many of its members to the armed forces in the Spring the class climaxed its activities by entertaining the Seniors in a patriotic setting.

Having reached the halfway mark of our scholastic journey, we the class of '45 pause to look back at the signposts which have marked our way. Our first reveals a smooth distance under guidance of our sponsors, Prof. and Mrs. Ireys. Along the way we see many signs reading, "Honor Roll", "Bumquet at Lake", "Second Place in Girls' Basketball".

Now Prof. and Mrs. Cunningham fill the vacancy left by the Ireys. The road is plain again. Alpha Kappa Sigma here we come.

The Vista

In a place of prominence is found the Greenville graduate's four copies of the Vista. At times when he wishfully recalls his college days, he lovingly turns back the pages of memory.

He looks at his freshman picture. How different from his senior face—so filled with the cares of the world. There's the staff—he had edited this Vista. And the champion basket-ball team, too.

That is what the Vista is—a pictorial review of Greenville College, published annually by a student-elected editor and a crew of student workmen.

The Papyrus, the weekly school paper, represents twenty-three years' unfolding of Greenville's history, chapter by chapter—all college hikes, the Living Endowment campaign, exam schedules, lyceums, gossip columns—a treasure of memories in that stack of old Paps.

This work is accomplished by a corps of aspiring journalists headed by a student editor.

A Cappella

Maimed by Uncle Sam's call of the bass, baritone and tenor voices, and by the lack of transportation facilities, A Cappella has, nevertheless, succeeded in giving their usual high grade performance. Prof. R. W. Woods has directed them in Christmas and Easter programs in the chapel and at local churches.

Glee Club

The girls' Glee Club acquired that charming "little-boy" look with their white surplices and black bows as they sang their Christmas numbers under the leadership of their youthful director, Miss Juanita Mayhew. They made their annual appearance at the local Presbyterian church and also joined A Cappella for a candlelight service in the chapel.

Community Chorus

An effective "V" formation done in black and white, with the dark suits of the fellows mounted against the light dresses of the ladies, was the scheme for the 1942-'43 presentation of the Christmas Oratorio. This year's Community Chorus, under the direction of Professor Woods and with the accompaniment of Miss Ruth Bixel, sang the impressive "Messiah" by Handel. The soloists were: Juanita Mayhew, soprano; Mrs. Homer T. Cunningham, contralto; Melvin Watson, tenor; and Hubert Wash, bass.

Gospel League Quartette

A necessity on our campus has been the Keller-Keys Quartet. This group has been most generous in giving their time and talents for the advancement of Christ's church. Their rich harmony has brought happiness and enjoyment to many hearts.

Messenger Quartette

With limited man power we have been indeed fortunate to have on our campus this excellent men's quartet. Through its presentation of songs in chapel, at our church and in the contributing territory, the Messenger Quartet has attained a wide musical reputation for Greenville College.

Rev. B. S. Lamson

From those early fall days when he asked our names until that last sermon, Rev. Byron S. Lamson has been a sincere friend of every student. His challenging messages have been an integral part of this college year.

Ministerial Association

The preachers of tomorrow, a spiritual dynamo on the campus of today: Ministerial Association. To these students, Greenville College is a background of preparation for their years ahead as faithful pastors—perhaps as district elders and bishops. Who knows?

Through its challenging discussions and lectures, this organization assumes a vital role in developing college students into Spirit-filled preachers capable of directing a living church.

Student Volunteers

In years to come, this group will probably be more widely scattered than any other. Already, as prospective missionaries, Volunteers see visions of far countries.

With a strong nucleus of students already knowing missions first hand, the group has had a richly profitable year.

Campus missionary zeal reached a new high point with the Volunteers-sponsored Conference in February.

Life Service League

Not to the ministry, not to the foreign fields—but still they are definitely called, these Life Service Leaguers; to their highest and best as Christian laymen.

Their meetings center in purposeful, dynamic living—living that means service throughout life. From this group will come leadership for the Christian laity which is the strength of the church.

College Missionary Society

Under the guidance of this loyal group of executives, College Missionary Society directs interest of the whole student group to missionary needs. Stimulating meetings are held once each month. Funds raised go toward the support of "our" missionary, Miss Frances Schlosser.

Elpinice

Eighteen active members made this year's Elpinice society an interesting and progressive one. Not only were there the usual new member and senior teas, but this year the girls contributed to the war effort by doing Red Cross sewing and making and presenting the college with a beautiful service flag.

Agora

Practical thinking on current events, speech technique, and individual problems of parliament characterize the programs of Agora. Several activities, such as contests, public programs, and the annual Agora-Elpinice banquet are included throughout the year.

Student Council

Democratic and interested in the welfare of each student, this group takes every problem of the student body and strives to find the best solution for it. It cooperates with faculty committees, supervises the selection of our student leadership, and promotes student activities of various sorts.

Enlivened, spirited, and made dynamic by the never-tiring efforts of our student body president, Milton Andrews, the Council has given us a government that we are proud to call a government of the students, by the students, and for the students which shall not perish from our campus.

The College Bookstore

"The most popular spot on the campus"—caps leap from coke bottles and roll on the floor. Three straws protrude above the top of the bottle, and three heads bend intently over them. Grains of popcorn jump from cellophane bag to mouth. Students clutter the counter like flies. . . "Hey, Bill, has "MORAL LAWS", by Brightman come in yet?" "I want a three-cent stamp!" "Will you order some stationery for me?" "Is there any ice cream today?"

That's "the most popular spot on the campus"—the College Bookstore, where the social, scholastic, and palatal yearnings of the students have been cheerfully satisfied during the past year by Bill Hibbett, manager, and Barstow Hoffman, assistant manager.

Scriblerus

There is one group of students on the campus who go about observing sunsets and grass-hoppers and fellow students. They jot down words and shape them into sonnets and odes and informal essays. They are members of Scriblerus, the creative writing club.

Aesculapian

A club for the possessors of scientific minds, the pre-medics and science majors—is Aesculapian. This year, under the sponsorship of Professor Wiebe and the presidency of Charles Keys, the organization has continued in the footsteps of its foundation principles, which were set forth in 1940.

Men's Basketball

The most popular sport at G.C. is basket-ball, and some of our most treasured memories of Greenville will take us back to Burritt gym. This year the seniors completed their record by winning their fourth consecutive championship after a close race with well-matched teams.

Soccer and Touch Football

The junior men scored as champs of both the touch football and soccer tournaments. They remained undefeated in the soccer game throughout the season. Football is the newest of the sports and is rapidly becoming the major fall game.

The Band

The Greenville College band is a group of voluntary members who meet once a week for group rehearsals under the able direction of Warren Smothers. They helped create a school spirit and enthusiasm at the basket-ball games. Several times they worked out pom-pom routines to stirring band marches, with three girls colorfully dressed in the school colors of orange and black. The band was well balanced as to instruments, including: flute, oboe, saxophone, clarinet, cornet, trombone, French horn, Sousaphone, and percussion sections.

Field Hockey

Down Scott Field charged the green and white, the scarlet and grey, the blue and white, the gold and blue, waving the menacing hockey sticks and frantically searching for the mythical white ball. Evidently the senior women knew how to find that vulnerable spot on the shin and how to place the blow in a striking way, for they came out of the fray victorious. This was the second hockey championship for the scarlet and grey, who also won last year.

Speed Ball

An innovation at Greenville this year was speedball. This game turned out to be rather a Mulligan Stew—combining the virtues of basket-ball, football, soccer. In this sport the energetic sophomore girls found their stride and sped away with the fall speedball championship.

Women's Basketball

First row: E. Blowers, J. Iler, E. Hoffman, E. Barton, V. Rue.

Second row: N. Jones, G. Herstine, A. Smedley.

Coach: D. Cutler.

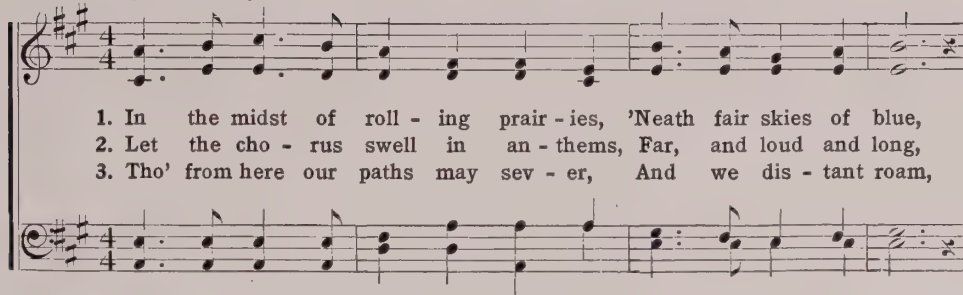

With strong evenly-matched teams from the senior, junior, and sophomore classes, the women's basketball tournament proved to be packed with thrilling, fast, and last-minute-victory games. Not until the very last game of the schedule were the contending teams for the championship title determined.

Twice the sophomores handed defeat to the juniors, but at last in the additional game the juniors put the sophs down and captured their coveted championship.

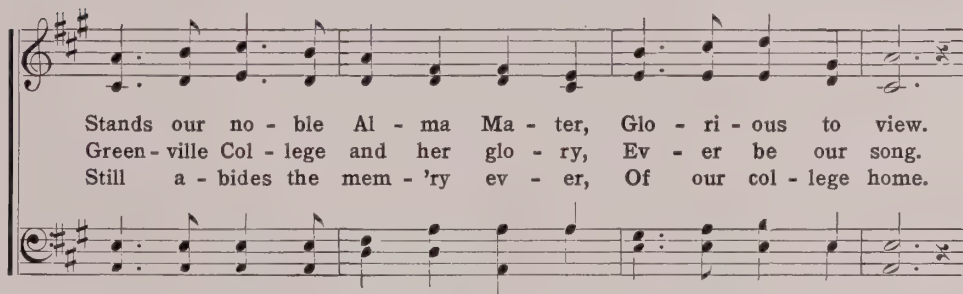

New recruits from the junior colleges gave the juniors that added strength which kept them hot on the trail toward a perfect four year victory record.

Retrospection

By Elva McAllaster

Good-bye now, you rich full year.
It has been grand knowing you.
You are leaving loving memories behind you
And friendships . . .
And learning . . .

Greenville's spirit built deep within us.

You made a good impression
When we first met you.
With class hikes and an all-college reception
You welcomed us.

You took us on an overnight hike
And we forgot lessons
In the splash of oars on a smooth lake,
In the zest of outdoor meals, and campfires,
Singing, and delicious weariness.

Week by week the Pap appeared,
Was read . . . and the gossip column
Was re-read.

Lyceums came, with everyone watching
For new couples.

Sadie Hawkins brought a hectic week

With girls opening doors . . .

Paying for cokes . . .

Asking for dates.

We sang about a "White Christmas",
And packed our suitcases with gay abandon;
But when we came back
We welcomed the campus as an old friend.

We met semester tests; term papers came due.
There were cram sessions,

And sleepy hours over stacks of books,
Then grades . . . and groans.

Basketball season meant thunderous cheers,
Hard playing . . . class colors . . . and jubilation
For senior men and junior girls.

A world at war became real to us
When gas was rationed . . . then shoes . . . then food;
When fellows laid aside flannel shirts
And history books
For khaki, and history in the making.

Rooms cleaned and polished,
Dusted and waxed,
Invited inspection
At open house.

You led us face to face with God
And challenged us to integrity and purpose
When you brought a missionary conference
And two stirring revivals.

Winter's snow gave way to sunshine,
Balmy velvet air,
Walks in the gullies,
Softball contests,
Spring fever.

You brought an enchanted banquet
Lovely as half-forgotten music,
With delicate corsages . . .
Pastel formals . . .
And juniors proud of their masterpiece.

Then last events . . .
Caps and gowns and move-up day

Senior skip hike . . .

Music recitals . . .

Baccalaureate . . .

And lumps in senior throats
Saying last good-byes.

O year, you have been wonderful
And now . . . reluctantly . . .

Gratefully . . .

Good-bye! Good-bye!

States are the sum-total of thousands of families. Families stand or fall, as the case may be, on the same principles of loyalty and co-operation as does the State. If wealth sustains the State then wealth sustains the family. Wealth is not achieved through hard frugality but through money-management. Make a profit-earning business of your family-life by establishing the budget. It is the magic that puts romance in plain, practical, every-day living.

Character

An old Chinese Philosopher once said, "that which has a price has no value, but that which is above price, is of great worth."

Here at General Grocer Company, in St. Louis, we place fine character above price. Honour, duty, and adherence to an ideal, all mould the character of a man. And so it is in business.

In Topmost and American Lady Foods, we hold to those principles of integrity, pride of accomplishment, and all qualities that make these the outstanding foods they are. When you visit the College Kitchens, you will find Topmost or American Lady foods an important item in the commissary.

Our vast forest, fertile farms, all link a vast empire of majestic cities together in the common interest of building a greater Nation. General Grocer Company, in St. Louis, is part of this great empire.

Our task is the continual conservation and distribution of the natural resources of field and farm. A constant enriching of lives, with increased wealth and happiness for thousands of workers employed in the distribution of foods that flow steadily through the doors of General Grocer Company here in Missouri. When you buy foods, look for the American Lady or Topmost label. It is assurance of quality, and assurance that your own great state is part of this great business of food distribution.
